Jim Knight and his colleagues have identified six essential domains (knowledge and skills) that need to be in place for instructional coaches to succeed. When any of these is missing, a coach's chances for success are significantly diminished.

The domains are:

- Understanding how to work with adults (which we refer to as understanding the complexities of helping and the partnership approach)
- Understanding the coaching cycle
- Understanding high-impact teaching practices
- Understanding how to gather data and use video as part of coaching
- Effective communication skills
- Effective leadership skills and systems thinking (what principals need to know about coaching)
